New Stennis manager named

Glenn Dill of Pass Christian is the new resident manager of Marshall Space Flight Center's Shuttle Project Office in Hancock County. Dill, who has been involved in the space program for 24 years and is a former Marshall Flight Center Science and Engineering Directorate representative at Stennis Space Center, has served since October 1989 as acting resident manager. He is responsible for managing the overall operations of the space shuttle main engine test program at SSC.

Waveland approves city appointments

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
With a full house of supporters and observers, Mayor Stella Frilot made, and the board approved, 35 appointments to city positions Wednesday. Utilities superintendent, a position previously held by the mayor, will now be held by Richard Ehrbright, Ed.D. Walter James Phillips, a Bay St. Louis attorney with the firm of Gex, Gex and Phillips, was sworn in as police justice. Judge Lee B. Klein, a Hancock County justice court judge, was also sworn in as police justice pro tem. Frilot said Klein has specified that he is donating his time if and when the City of Waveland needs it. A new position under the Frilot administration is the Parks and Parkway Commission, to be headed by Robert W. Haney, president of the Idlewood home owners association. The already-existing Planning and Zoning Commission is now listed by ward. Chairman is Keith Mitchell. Representatives by ward are: Ward 1 — Eldridge Lewis, who was a previous member; Ward 2 — Betsy R. Phillips; Ward 3 — Michael Barnes; Ward 4 — Stephen W. Landry. Retaining appointments are Police Chief

Waveland's administration prepares for the new year

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
The City of Waveland held its last meeting of the old year, Wednesday, Dec. 20, with eyes ahead to improvements in city services. Ray Eaton, city engineer, presented to the board a plan for a survey as to the number of homes not presently connected to the city sewerage system. He said the plan would include what the cost would be to provide the service. Eaton added the present system can more than handle the extra hook-ups. The board approved. Eaton also received approval to proceed with an encompassing drainage survey in order to determine problem locations. A bid for a light timer for the Elwood Bourgeois Park was approved by the board, thereby giving tennis court users the ability to turn the park lights on when needed and off when not needed. The convenience of the time is intended to save the city on electricity costs. A bid for rental of lights from Mississippi Power Company, at the Elwood Bourgeois practice field was approved by the board. The city will pay $62.70 and all maintenance is included. Bids for a new furnace at fire house No.1 was taken under advisement. The board asked that the furnaces be evaluated before making the decision. The board approved to match what Mississippi Power Company will supply in services for any new business locating on Coleman Avenue. The program is to encourage development in Waveland—Page 2A

Chamber plans active 1991

BY TRACI BONNEY
Basil Kennedy has a busy year ahead as president of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce. He said the chamber intends to spend the year unifying, getting the chamber board and the community involved in chamber projects, and disseminating information where it is needed. "Our role essentially is to promote businesses in the community and to fill the needs of those businesses," he commented. Kennedy said the chamber plans to hold several seminars designed to benefit businesses, with topics such as taxes and marketing being covered. He added that businesses belonging to the chamber will be offered a discounted rate for the seminars. The monthly chamber breakfast meetings will be used, he continued, to distribute information about community happenings and business concerns, and to "squell rumors" concerning dockside gambling and other issues. Referring to that controversial topic, Kennedy said the chamber is not taking a stand. "The best thing we can do is make sure elected officials, people in the community and small businesses understand the gambling law. "We will also support any revenues that might come of any ventures in the community." Kennedy said the chamber has a copy of the law passed by the state legislature available for review or making copies for a small fee. Turning to other matters, Kennedy said the chamber intends to continue its highway beautification, walking track improvement and beach cleanup projects. He added that the chamber plans to move its breakfasts to the soon-to-be-finished civic center on Longfellow Drive. "It's closer to the economic center, or 'eco-center', of the area, since it's near Hwys. 90 and 603," he explained. Plans are also in the making to move the chamber office itself, but Kennedy declined to reveal the location as yet. He did say, however, this plan should be completed in three to six months. "We plan to move to a place with better visibility, better ingress and egress, and better parking," Kennedy said. He mentioned that new maps for the county should be out in mid-January, barring any problems. He explained that the CHAMBER—Page 3A

State commission approves part of NASA wetland permit

The state Commission on Environmental Quality in a 6-1 vote Thursday approved part of a federal permit for NASA to fill in 69 wetland acres to construct a rocket test site in Hancock County. The permit itself has yet to be granted and awaits an Army Corps of Engineers decision on NASA's proposal for the wetlands, said Beth Guynes, chief of the Corps' evaluation section in Vicksburg. Gale Singley of Moss Point was the commissioner who cast the dissenting vote. She said her vote reflects her moral opposition to a decision made Tuesday by the state Environmental Quality Permit Board to grant air emissions and waste water discharge permits to NASA. Singley said the permits will let NASA pump up to 350 tons of contaminants into the air for each 2 1/2 minute rocket firing test. Opponents of the test site said Thursday they think they can achieve more success by fighting the program in federal court over the wetlands permit than they can by contesting the permit board's decision. Robert Esher, a spokesman for Citizens for a Healthy Environment, said the group will wait to see what the Corps does before deciding how to proceed. NASA officials said the agency would like to start construct of the facility in late January or early February. They also said the program needs to be located NASA—Page 3A

Bingo! State court rules game is not a lottery

Local bingo operators and players — as well as those planning to operate dockside gambling facilities in the area — are breathing sighs of relief this week. The State Supreme Court ruled Friday that bingo is not a lottery, and therefore not illegal. Attorney General Mike Moore said that even though the court's opinion did not specifically mention games of chance such as roulette and slot machines in its ruling, the opinion given still clears the path for such games on cruise ship, riverboat, and dockside gaming vessels. Friday's ruling ends a legal battle that started in January when Moore filed suit to close bingo operations throughout the state. Hundreds of charitable and profitable parlors across Mississippi closed, but resumed operation later in the spring under a 90-day extension from a lower court ruling. Moore said his intention in filing the suit was to halt operations that gave little of their profits to charity and therefore abused the state's laws concerning charitable bingo parlors. Justice Lenore Prather, who wrote for the high court, paralleled Moore's argument that bingo is a lottery because it has similar elements to the argument that three animals are the same because they have four legs, two eyes and a tail. Prather called such logic "absurd." Three justices dissented with the ruling. Moore pointed out that their dissent gives the state legislature a message that tighter bingo laws are needed.

older downtown areas by providing free services for two months along with waiver of deposit.

The board gave approval for the use of an unmarked vehicle to transport trustees from the county jail for highway cleaning purposes.

Two property 'sell backs' were approved. Eugene Breaux purchased lots 30-37, block 92, and Lynn B. Mary purchased lots 23-25, block 12.

A presentation by Ed Horstman, treasurer for the Mississippi Vietnam Veterans Memorial Committee explained the intended construction and use of the memorial at Cadet Point in Biloxi. The board asked that a decision on any donation to the memorial wait until budget time next year.

Discussion of updating and owning of the city's phone system resulted in board approval to ask for bids.

Mayor Stella Frilot projected a savings to the city within a year-and-a-half, compared to the present rental plan.

Approval was given to the retainer agreement with the city attorney.

Moore and Powell CPA firm received approval to proceed with the 1990 city audit.

The board approved moving the January monthly meeting from Tuesday, Jan. 1 to Wednesday, Jan. 2 at 7:30 p.m.

Before the board adjourned, Frilot thanked the remaining 10 to 12 observers from the evening's meeting for attending, and reminded everyone of the city Christmas party on Sunday, Dec. 19 from 3 to 6 p.m.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Granddaughter's Christmas poem will always be remembered

Dear Editor,

To all of my friends and relations, I would like to share this poem with you. This is what makes December, and especially Christmas, so wonderful. My 14-year-old granddaughter wrote this poem for me. She is now 29 years old.

When I read it each time, it brings tears to my eyes, just thinking of those times.

She signed it by the name of Tutie, which I used to call her. Her real name is Susie Lawson.

I love you, Tutie.

Mel Villere
Waveland

I know a man old and wise. He stretches the truth, but never lies.

His face is dark, and his hair is gray.

I can count on him to always brighten my day.

The memories I love best to remember

Are the Christmas's in the cold of December.

And on those nights the rain would storm,

I'd run to his arms and he'd keep me warm.

He'd tell me stories of witches and ghosts.

These are the memories I love most.

I watch this man and I look in awe.

This kind old man is my grand paw.

I love you Paw-Paw!

All of my love always,
Tutie

Though it's Christmas with all its cheer
We miss you both this time of year.

If tears could build a stairway, and heartaches made a lane,

We would walk the path to heaven and bring you both back again.

If God would let us have our way,
And you both would be here with us today,

We would kiss your lips and hug your necks
And wish you Merry Christmas, and know you are both loved in a very special way.

God's golden gates stood open seven years ago today.

With farewells left unspoken you quickly skipped away.

Your cheerful smile and helpful ways,

We miss so much these lonely days.

Although we sometimes question the wisdom of His love,

But God calls His Angels to be with him alone.

No heartaches can compare with the death of a child.

But one day, Myrthee, we will be by your side.

OPERATION LIFESAVER LOOK, LISTEN AND LIVE

Look, listen and live at railroad crossings. That's the word from officials with Operation Lifesaver, a public awareness and education program aimed at preventing and reducing crashes, injuries and fatalities at the nation's 300,000 public and private railroad crossings.

Thousands of people are seriously injured and hundreds are killed in nearly 6,000 railroad crossing accidents each year. Many drivers don't cross railroad tracks often enough to be familiar with devices designed for their safety. Often they are not aware that trains cannot stop as quickly as motor vehicles to avoid a collision. Others simply ignore all warnings because they are in a hurry and would rather try to beat the train than wait. Driver ignorance and impatience are the most common factors contributing to crossing collisions.

Any person or organization is welcome to join in Operation Lifesaver. To get involved at the local level doing whatever possible to help educate motorists that they need to exercise greater care at railroad crossings.

Get involved by contacting Operation Lifesaver. For more information, or a free speaker at your PTA, Church, Club, Civic or Fraternal Organization Contact Mr. G.T. Bowden 205-434-1394.

CONSUMER UPDATE

Year-end tax tips

By Janet K. Lukens
Area Consumer
Management Specialist

The new tax law is written but where does that leave you? There is very little time for maneuvers that might save you tax dollars. However, there are some moves you can make before the end of the year to keep more dollars in your pocket.

Accelerate deductions. If your tax bracket will be the same or lower next year, it pays to accelerate deductions to the current year when possible.

Those who fall in the 33 percent bracket this year will fall into a new 31 percent bracket next year. This bracket is expected to begin at $49,300 on a single return and at $82,150 on joint returns in 1991.

Deductions to accelerate include estimated state income taxes, your January property taxes, and some of next year's contributions.

Make an extra mortgage payment before year-end to pick up the extra interest deduction. If your medical expenses are close to the 7.5 percent of AGI required to deduct them, increase them by getting check-ups and elective procedures done before year-end.

If miscellaneous deductions are near 2 percent of AGI, pay union dues, the safe-deposit box fee, professional dues and subscriptions before the end of the year too.

Postpone income. For those in tax brackets which will remain the same or decrease, this rule also reduces and/or postpones income taxes.

Delay sales of appreciated assets such as stocks or mutual funds, postpone withdrawing money from an IRA, and if you have your own business, delay billings so that income is not received in the current year. If you will be in a higher tax bracket next year, it could benefit you to accelerate income into 1990. Taxpayers with adjusted gross income over $97,620 on a single return and $162,770 on a joint return will be the group to see an increase in their marginal tax bracket next year.

It will increase from 28 percent to 31 percent. In addition to an increasing tax bracket, taxpayers in the over $100,000 income range will be losing deductions and over $150,000 incomes will see a phasing out of personal exemptions.

This group will need to rely on the advice of their tax consultant to protect as much income as possible from excessive taxes.

Take your losses. If you have paper losses on stocks, bonds, or mutual funds, it could benefit you to sell those assets to offset income. Up to $3,000 in losses can be deducted against ordinary income. Losses can also be used to offset an unlimited amount of capital gains.

Starting in January, long-term capital gains are capped at 28 percent. If you are in the 33 percent tax bracket, you can reduce taxes by waiting to sell assets which have produced capital gains.

Use cafeteria plans to pay medical and child care expenses. The plans allow you to pay for these expenses with "before-tax" dollars thereby lowering state and federal income tax plus social security and medicare tax.

Because of an increase in the income taxable for purposes of the medicare tax, cafeteria plans have an increased value to high income taxpayers.

KILLING TIME

By Traci Bonney

I'd like you to meet my brother

Have you ever wanted to take someone's pain completely away from them?

I have a brother who is like that. He doesn't like to see people hurting.

Have you ever wanted to comfort someone in a time of great sorrow? I mean really comfort the person, not just say "You have my condolences" and hug him or her?

My brother is like that. He's wonderful at helping people find strength to endure through times of mourning, and even find the gladness of heart to remember the good times and expect them to come again some day.

Have you ever wanted to give someone instruction, guidance or advice in a situation, knowing you have the right answer, and have that person follow it eagerly?

My brother is an excellent counselor and teacher. As long as I've known him, his answers and wisdom have never fallen short of the mark. And as long as I've known him, he's never failed to answer me.

Have you ever wanted to be able to come through with the response to a need for someone, even if it were a last-minute provision?

My brother is better at that than anyone I know. Sometimes his timing is so split-second that I wonder if he'll come through, but he always does.

He sounds too good to be real, doesn't he? Oh, but he is.

My brother doesn't always pat me on the head and tell me how perfect I am, though. He points out to me those areas where I'm weak, or in the wrong, or in the dark.

He always does it in a loving way, though, and with a readiness and commitment to help me become strong, straighten my attitude or view out, or come into the light.

And if, on occasion, I act stubborn and refuse to heed him, he lets me try it my way. He never turns his back on me, though, and he's first one to run to me, pick me up and dust me off, and let me know I'm still loved.

My brother loves people of all ages — young, old and in-between — and of all races — black, white, oriental, American Indian, Hispanic, and every other one that may come to your mind.

He sounds absolutely marvelous, doesn't he?

He's also good at rescuing people from scrapes. He's done it for me as long as I've known him, and he's done it for other people for ages.

There's a lot more about him I could tell you, and even more that I can't tell you, because I don't know it. You see, I just met him a little less than three years ago, when his father adopted me.

I can tell you this, though. Whether you know him or not, you'll be celebrating his birthday in two days.

He wants to meet you.

There's a book that tells his life story, and there are plenty of other people in this area who can help you meet my brother.

I think you might have an idea who my brother is now, if you didn't already figure it out. I hope you'll think about meeting him soon.

Meanwhile, enjoy his birthday.

Happy Birthday,
Jesus!

They added that they plan to compensate for wetlands loss by returning pine timberland to its natural state and filling in ditches to keep former wetlands from draining.

While test site opponents contend NASA has underestimated the damage of emissions to wetlands and wildlife, agency officials counter that the emissions will not cause such long-term harm.

changing of road names for 911 services contributed to the delay in printing the maps.

Other projects include actively seeking groups to use Buccaneer Park, groups like the Telephone Pioneers Family Campers who camped in the park for a week while holding their national convention there; continuing the red beans and rice luncheons held quarterly; developing a comprehensive county brochure that can be used by the chamber, businesses and other organizations; soliciting increased involvement and cooperation between the chamber, the Bay St. Louis Business Association and the Diamond-head Business and Professional Association; working to make Stennis Space Center more a part of the community; updating the chamber's data processing capabilities; working to bring people to the area to retire; and participating in a survey, along with Mississippi Power, that will give information about where and what Hancock County residents buy.

Kennedy said the survey, which will be distributed through the schools, will be used to help fill vacant buildings in the county.

Lasers: Magic or Medicine?

While you may have heard a lot of talk about lasers lately, it's important to know all the facts. When used properly by skilled physicians, you can see amazing results from laser surgery: less damage to surrounding tissue, faster healing, less pain, and reduced cost. But it's important to remember that only your doctor can advise you whether a laser procedure is appropriate for you.

Thirty-four surgeons at Memorial Hospital at Gulfport currently perform laser procedures ranging from gall bladder removal, to infertility cases in which fallopian tubes are opened or reconstructed, to removal of superficial cancers, to repair of the retina in the eye.

For more information about laser surgery, contact your physician or for a physician referral call Memorial M.D. at 865-DOCS (3627).

Joyous Noel

May the light of His love shine upon you this Christmas season.

I wonder if other folks have had the same problem I sorta 'ran into' on Interstate 10 twice this past week. I was traveling from New Orleans on I-10 entering Slidell during a rainstorm when a truck passed me and I could not see for several hundred feet.

The truck was one of those which hauls those large concrete pilings and it had the back wheels pulled in close. As I passed the truck at the Louisiana scales, I could see that it did not have any wheel flaps.

It seems to me that those trucks should be required to use flaps over their wheels like other 18-wheelers.

It wasn't too long when the same truck passed me once again. I was on the bridge over Pearl River approaching the grid and I could not see the concrete railing, much less the road, because the truck's wheels threw up so much water.

I can very easily see why there are so many accidents during rainstorms and I am sure the vehicles which possibly cause some of them continue on down the road as if nothing has happened. Only those who were blinded by them are involved in accidents and the trucks just keep 'trucking along.'

We have a lot of State Troopers on the Highway, both in Louisiana and Mississippi and it seems they could keep a closer eye on this situation.

The local vocal group, Class Distinction has released its latest recording on cassette titled Christmas Doo-Bee Swing.

The is the second production by the popular local group which is primarily composed of Mary Howard, Connie Heitzmann and Pam Wallace.

The Christmas songs include PaPa Noel, What You Gonna Call Your Pretty Baby?, a Rockin' Christmas Medley and Winter Wonderland.

In the event you have forgotten a present for someone, I am told the cassette is available at local outlets.

I wish Mary, Connie and Pam the best of success with their latest production.

I hope that this one, like their first, will be a hot seller.

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

Free trade not necessarily fair, Rep. Taylor says

U. S. Rep. Gene Taylor called for America to be able to compete on a level playing field with foreign countries during a one-day conference sponsored by The National Review.

"Free trade has not necessarily been fair trade," Taylor said. "We are the only country in the world that allows unlimited access to our markets, while all of our exports are subjected to protectionism in one form or another from foreign countries."

Taylor's remarks came during a panel discussion entitled "Conservative Policies Democrats Can Support." Taylor joined other conservative Democrats such as Gov. Douglas Wilder, D-Va., Rep. Beverly Byron, D-Md., and Rep. John LaFollette, D-N.Y., to discuss the role that conservatives play in the Democratic Party.

"We need to take the steps necessary to protect American jobs," Taylor said calling for American trade restrictions. "Our foreign competitors certainly aren't looking out for this country."

"In the case of Japan, they don't openly ban imports of American products, what they do is 'study' the effect American products will have on their economy. Some of those studies last for 30 years or more. That's not a study... that's a ban disguised as a study."

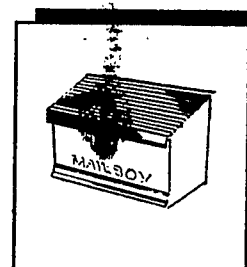

Other panel discussions included "Reagan Democrats—Will They Ever Come Back?" and "How the Left Hijacked the Party and How Moderates and Conservatives Can Get it Back."

Taylor, a pro-life, pro-defense, fiscal conservative, said he felt the Democratic Party will become more in tune with mainstream Americans in the 1990s.

Taking lessons

Michael Haas Jr., left, tries to get clues as to how Tim Ryan exceeded Hancock County's 1990 United Way campaign goal. Haas, the assistant campaign chairman is aware of the fact that he will be responsible for the 1991 campaign. Ryan, the 1990 campaign chairman, did indicate that since Haas was such big help this year, he would lend a hand next year. Ryan said, he wants to thank everyone who helped in the campaign, especially those who made contributions of cash or by payroll deductions, because, without everyone, the campaign would not have been successful. One of the old slogans of the United Way is "Thanks To You—The United Way—It Works for All of Us. (Echo staff photo by Jacqui Cochran).

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Gambling comparison labeled ridiculous

To the Editor,
I am writing in response to a Letter to the Editor recently published. I can't comprehend how someone could compare dockside gambling to the purchasing of insurance policies.

Speaking as a homeowner, car owner and a mother of three, I could not imagine not having my property, not to mention my children's futures, protected. I do not think this makes me hypocritical, just practical.

This type of thinking is some small attempt to rationalize the ill effects that this gambling legislation will have on our community.

I have not heard of an increase in criminal activity due to the opening of a new insurance agency.

I have also not heard of a support group such as Gamblers Anonymous for people who cannot control themselves from purchasing insurance. This is an absurd comparison!

The last comment I would like to make is in response to the quote of John 8:51. Jesus was speaking of eternal life with him in heaven. Some gambling proponents may feel that this issue is over, but God does not lose! My bets are on him.

Sincerely,
Michelle Wilson Pitre

Gambling proponent labels advertisement 'sour grapes'

Dear Editor,
Ugh... What a smell! What is that?

It is sour grapes and newsprint. Well, it would have to be in newsprint. I haven't heard anyone complaining. I usually love the smell of ink, but this sour grapes is turning my stomach. I voted "yes" and so did Hancock County.

After reading the full page ad (back page, first section of the Dec. 20 issue) don't you get a feeling that a casino will be put in the ditch next to my print shop on Highway 90? After all, it said, "This will allow Dockside Casino Gambling in all commercially zoned areas. Areas zoned light and heavy industrial would also be affected."

Allyson Keller

More sour grapes

Dear Editor,
What is the fruit of the anti-gambling tree? Sour grapes! The back page of Thursday's issue of the Sea Coast Echo (Dec. 20, 1990) are simply more scare tactics used by those who oppose dockside gambling. Face reality... The voters mandated dockside gambling as legal. Are those votes worthless?

Josef P. Overall

Thanks to those who opposed rocket testing

To the Editor:

I was saddened to read in the Echo that the ASRM testing was approved by the Department of Environmental Quality.

The opposing of the ASRM started out with a handful of people who knew the damage that could be done to our environment.

They tried their hardest to inform the community of the risks and dangers of the testing of these rockets. They gave their time, money and energy. As a result, hundreds of people got involved.

To those people I want to say a big "Thanks" for caring for our community and our environment.

On Christmas

Most of America will spend today and tomorrow reviewing their Christmas lists and checking them twice—in hopes of filling the wishes of friends and family.

For the procrastinators among us, the last two days represent a shopping frenzy—the lines are longer, the merchandise picked-over and patience is shorter.

In your quest for the perfect gift, I would like to offer a suggestion to keep in the back of your mind. The most truly special gifts are not under your tree, but on the sofa, fighting over control of the television clicker.

My father, who passed away nearly three years ago, was not intrigued by material things, but by the people he loved. To be surrounded by his immediate family was all he ever needed for contentment.

His advice, which I often fancied myself too busy to listen to, was simple. If I provided every material wish of my children, the most important (although unspoken) one would remain unfulfilled.

The unselfish giving of time, and unlimited, unconditional love was really what they wanted. Such wishes are never spoken.

Translation: the $135 state-of-the-art basketball shoes are not nearly as important as the attendance of parents at the game—even if their son/daughter warms the bench. But, time is the hardest gift to find.

It seems to slip from our grasp as we move from appointment to appointment and watch the weeks fly by. It is a cruel thief as our list of responsibilities grows longer and the days seem shorter.

This Christmas, take the time to appreciate those you love; and give them a piece of your heart as well as your wallet.

The happiest Christmas memories are not ones of things, but of people. May the blessings of the holiday season be yours.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy
McGuire Caire

Merry Christmas—and merry last-minute Christmas shopping for gifts as well as for all sorts of holiday food needs! Speaking of gifts, you'll find suggestions and ideas all around our area supermarkets just now, including colorful fruit baskets, holiday cakes and candies, flower and plant baskets and so on.

A basket piled high with tasty navel oranges would be most welcome as a gift. The California navel oranges are quite sweet and tasty, as are the Florida sweets. Of course, we are missing the luscious navel oranges from Louisiana, due to last Yuletide's bitter freeze and bitter results to the orange groves, so much so that the recent annual Orange Festival in South Louisiana had to be celebrated orange-less!

I like to combine oranges with kiwi fruits and bright red and green apples, piling them in colorful baskets and scattering walnuts and pecans over. Or, just put a bright Christmas bow and a bit of holly on a bag of oranges straight from the produce bins!

A basket of specialty food items will also be welcome, I am sure, as will an assortment of cheeses and such. You'll see all sorts of possibilities as you go through the stores. And, you'll find all kinds of "fixings" and suggestions for the festive Christmas dinner as well, of course.

As to the piece de resistance of the meal, if you're going the traditional turkey route, you'll find the noble bird in great variety in the markets, from turkey breasts to butterballs, fresh turkeys, smoked turkeys, and so on.

You'll also find fryers and fresh baking hens, along with ducks, capons and geese and cornish hens. There are also myriad beef choices, also lamb legs and a variety of fresh pork, as well as hams, all at good prices.

In the ham category, you might want to snatch up one of the hickory smoked, super trim hams on special (with 70 percent less fat, and with the skin removed). Or what about a hickory smoked butt or shank half of ham, or a boneless ham; but, I like to have that ham bone for cooking red beans!

More and more cooks seem to turn to pork roasts at Christmas time, always a favorite, especially with such delights as crown pork roasts and whole Boston Butts and quarter loins and boneless pork loins offered at the meat counters.

If you've opted for baked ham, you might want to try this:

PEACH-GLAZED HAM
(Prepare a day ahead)
1 whole cooked ham, bone-in (10 to 14 lbs.)
Whole cloves
1½ cups peach preserves
2 cups Burgundy

1 bay leaf
1/2 cup light brown sugar
Place ham, fat side up, in a deep roasting pan with a cover. With a sharp knife, cutting 1/2-inch deep, score outside fat in diamond pattern. Spoon preserves over surface. Stud with cloves. Pour wine into bottom of pan, and add bay leaf.

Cover, and bake in a 350-degree oven for 30 minutes. Uncover and coat with brown sugar. Continue to bake, uncovered, basting once or twice, for 30 minutes. Transfer ham to large platter. Cool and refrigerate 24 hours. (20 to 30 servings)—from "Jambalaya" cookbook, published by the Junior League of New Orleans.

Dessert, of course, takes the center of attention at holiday time. And, since chocolate is the favorite of so many, why not prepare a couple of easy but elegant finales to the festive meal?

One of my favorites over the years is fudge pie, richer than rich. The recipe comes from that excellent cookbook, "River Road Recipes" by the Junior League of Baton Rouge, La. Here's:

FUDGE PIE

2 squares bitter chocolate
1 stick butter or margarine
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1/4 cup sifted flour
Melt chocolate and butter in double boiler. Mix flour and sugar. Beat eggs and combine with flour and sugar. Add chocolate and butter. Put in well greased 9-inch pie tin and bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 45 minutes.

Serve with topping of ice cream or whipped cream. Will cut into segments like a pie. We sometimes top the slices with ice cream and then with hot fudge sauce! This is quite rich, and delicious!

Do we ever outgrow our love of chocolate candy bars? So, try:

HERSHEY BAR PIE
6 small chocolate almond bars

16 marshmallows
1/2 cup milk
1 cup whipping cream
Melt above ingredients, except, of course, whipping cream, in double boiler, then cool thoroughly. Beat whipping cream until stiff, then fold into above mixture. Pour into prepared cooked pastry crust or graham cracker (crushed) crust. Place in refrigerator until serving time. Can be made ahead of time and kept in deep freeze. (One 9" pie)

The meaning of Christmas

By Rev. Dr. Arthur Johnson
Christ Episcopal Church

Christmas is a very complex season, even for happy pagans. There is so much to do, feel and think that has to do with this "season," as it is called. We shop and try to give gifts to different sorts of people from different kinds of motives.

All the feelings associated with the "season" come flooding back to us, especially feelings that have to do with family, our early years, feelings of loves and losses, and images of some sort of "peace on earth."

It is a season of pulling disparate things together in our minds and remembering the things in our lives that are pulled apart. It is a time of sadness, of joy, of hope and remembering.

There is no one thing that seems to occupy center stage. Therapists sell their services based on the need some have because of finding themselves depressed this time of year.

Retailers straight forwardly market their wares and from time to time you hear people saying they wish Christmas were not so materialistic. But it is materialistic and it seems to be getting more so.

Children must get more spontaneous joy out of this season than any other. No one collects old Halloween costumes for the poor. But at Christmastime, there are many loving souls trying to provide for the joy of the least among us, and with some success.

It is, overall, a good and a happy season, or at least one rich with meaning and feeling and activity—no matter what you believe.

December 25 was a day to celebrate the Sun God in first century Rome. The early Christians, not being willing to worship at that altar, decided it was a good time to celebrate the birth of Jesus, the Christ, hence "Christ-mass."

Over time, the Roman meaning was lost as was the primitive form of worship. In the Eastern church, the birth of Jesus was celebrated January 6, the Feast of the Epiphany, the shining forth of God into the world.

But the essential meaning of Christmas has to do with the coming of god into the world, as a human being, albeit a male one. Had God become human today, we could have been blessed with a female incarnation if it happened in the Western world.

The fact is, the sex that God chose to become is not ultimately very important, except that the sex had to fit the times. Had God become woman in the year zero, she might not have been noticed in Israel, and certainly not followed.

However, God became human as a male. God became one of us. God enacted a fact which helped us to understand that there is something about being human that is, in itself, godly.

We were, after all, and according to Holy Scripture, made in the image of God. We are like God in our nature. God became like us to let us know that it was and is all right to be a human being. It is so all right that the creator of heaven and earth chose to become one of us.

The early Church struggled with the meaning of Jesus Christ from the very beginning and gradually worked out the basic outline of what all Christians believe to this day.

Each group of Christians may have its favorite aspect of the nature of Christ that it emphasizes, but most believe the basics that were hammered out during the first eight centuries of Christianity.

One very important understanding turned out to be, like so many others, somewhat contradictory, and was hence called a "Holy Mystery." Even back then the intelligentsia knew that we can know very little, though we can make pretty good models of what reality is like.

That's all science does today—comes up with one model after another of what reality is like. Things worked fairly well with a flat world until someone needed to go around it.

Even as early as the beginning of this century, people assumed there were such things as straight lines until someone had to go off the planet into space. Then we decided that there are no straight lines, but curves. All our knowledge is merely one model that works for awhile, and then it is replaced by a model that works better.

The theological model of Christ Jesus was and still is faithful in stating that he was both fully human and fully God. That sounds like a contradiction, but theological models call it a mystery, with the understanding that reality is somewhere in the midst of the two statements.

The important part of that for us is that Jesus Christ is the savior of each and every one of us. That means that he had to be altogether like us in every way, except that he was not warped, he did not sin.

Somehow he got it all right, he was perfect person. As such we can find in him the goodness that is in each of us at the root. Seeing ourselves through him, as if he were some sort of lens, can make us able to see what God created us to be and what each of us in some way can be.

He is said to sanctify us, to make us holy by his taking on our flesh. Whatever my basic nature is, God sees me and accepts me as Holy because when he became human he became what you and I are.

That is pretty profound if you think about it. So often in our troubled world, we try to root out evil and control destructiveness by attacking our human nature.

We get right up close to saying that God made a big mistake in creating us the way we are. Why did he make us so aggressive? What is the point

The liberty to celebrate

LOOKING INSIDE

By Pastor Bob Guidry, Jr.

I have heard many Christians grumble about our celebrating the birth of Christ. Some feel that because of materialism, we should stop altogether.

Although I also believe it has become commercialized, we would be in error if we did not celebrate the birth of our Lord and Savior.

The devil is a thief. The Bible tells us in John 10:10, "the thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy." Over the years, the devil has stolen away many of the things God has given us. We have been left to do spiritual warfare without any weapons.

Years ago, God began to restore those things the devil had stolen from the church. Men like Martin Luther helped to take us out of the dark ages of Satanic rule and bring us into the freedom of the Spirit of God.

Since that time, God has restored many other things to the church. One of these has been the baptism in the Holy Spirit. Millions of people have experienced this miraculous infilling of power in their lives.

Jesus said in John 16:13, "Howbeit when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth..." Paul said in II Corinthians 3:17, "...where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty."

We who have the Spirit of God living in us have the liberty of the Spirit to help guide us into the truth. We have the truth living in us.

This time of the year is very special in more than one way. It is a time where people of all walks of life allow themselves to live out some of the principals of God.

People seem to be different around Christmas. I don't know about you, but I like it.

Merry Christmas from Harvest Time Church, and may the blessings of God be upon you during this season and the coming year.

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

"Be wary about giving advice. The wise don't need it; fools don't heed it."

That saying captures one of our more interesting human quirks: we like to give advice, but we don't like to receive it.

At this time of the year when we take a close look at our humanity, it is most fascinating to note that Jesus, who took on all the trappings of our humanness, never gave advice.

Born where perhaps only a handful of people in all of history were born, in a cattle cave, this God-man began his sojourn on earth a step behind and a cut below virtually every other human being.

Since he was born with nothing and without pomp and circumstance, he was well qualified to give us the directive which far exceeds mere human advice:

"I warn you: do not worry about your livelihood, what you are to eat or drink or use for clothing. Look at the birds in the sky. They do not sow or reap, they gather nothing into barns; yet, your heavenly Father feeds them" (Mt. 6: 25-26).

Human to a fault, the little baby was so vulnerable to the malicious designs of evil men that Joseph and Mary had to spirit him out of his native land into the alien country of Egypt in order to avoid his being murdered. Hence, he gave, not advice, but a strong directive when he was evangelizing as a grown man:

"Do not fear those who kill the body, but cannot destroy the soul. Rather, fear him who can destroy both body and soul in Gehenna" (Mt. 10: 28).

As a mature preacher, Jesus in having our reproduction processes be so problematic for all of us?

Why, in other words, do we spend most of our adolescence trying to figure out what is good and bad about our sexuality? And then when we are much older many of us realize we got it all wrong in our teen years. Why didn't God create us so that we could not kill or have wars? Why?

We are taught by this very old theology that God created us good and then became one of us in every way. That means that my aggressiveness is good. That means that my sexuality is good. That means that there is good somewhere in every feeling, impulse and thought that I or anyone has. That is hard to take.

So much of our civilization has labeled our impulses as bad in an attempt to keep them in control and to prevent them from doing harm that it is hard to believe some of them are good, let alone all of them!

God becoming human, Christmas, is all about acceptance. It is about God's acceptance of each of us and all there is to each of us. It is, then, about our acceptance of ourselves.

Every teacher knows little Johnny does better work if he has a positive self-image. Every therapist spends a large portion of any type therapy working on the client's self-image and self-acceptance. And here we find God did it for us two thousand years ago.

In the clearest way, God said, "Hey humans, you're o.k., you've got a lot going for you."

Now we know that little Johnny is not perfect when his teacher tries to build self-respect. We know that he will still make mistakes as he learns to handle those many good parts of his personality and of his body. We are in the same situation with our creator-redeemer.

God knows we need a good bit of self-respect to live here and do whatever it is we were created to do. God sent a very clear message to human being in the baby Jesus and that is what Christmas is all about.

It is because of that clear message that the story is still told. It is because we all need to hear that we are accepted and acceptable, that Christmas has not died out.

It is because God became material, like you and me, that materialism will never engulf the real message of Christmas. "Hey humans, it's o.k. to be material, that's what I became too, so you would know that the spiritual and the material are joined in the highest creature on this planet earth—you!"

Incarnation means to become flesh. That is what we are in part. Because it was God who became flesh we can get the hint that there is something spiritual about being in the flesh, something more than just the obvious material that we surely are.

Because of Christmas there is the possibility of world peace because we are loved and acceptable creatures, all of us. That means that each of us deserves love, that each of us can be loving.

God is a good teacher and a good therapist. Our creator is growing us up into the fullness of the perfect human nature that Jesus Christ was. He did this for us.

You and I shall be "as gods," says St. Paul. A strange phrase, but one that teaches us that we are, because of the Christ, able to accept ourselves and grow to become what we are not yet, loving and creative like our creator.

So whether you are a happy pagan, a Christian of whatever brand or of another spiritual tradition, you have been given a gift by God—you are worthy to be called a son or daughter. Don't forget it!

By the way, your neighbor is worthy, too. Don't forget that either. Merry Christmas human beings. Jesus, the child of God, God himself, is born among us, for us.

The man with no advice had a mesmerizing way with words, but his message was much stronger than his galvanizing speech. Still, he did not indulge in giving advice. Rather, he made it clear that anything which he understood to be beneficial for individuals or for humanity is mandatory; not ranking with the ten commandments, but nonetheless mandatory. The Father came first:

"Your heavenly Father knows all that you need. Seek first his kingship over you, his way of holiness, and all these things will be given you besides" (Mt. 6: 32-33).

Even Caesar gets his due concerning things temporal, provided that there is no prejudice to God's eminent domain. Again, the Master gives a command, not advice:

"Render, therefore, to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, but render to God the things that are God's" (Mt. 22: 21).

Turning to discipleship, Jesus laid it on the line in tough terms which no one could misunderstand: "Whoever would be my disciple must deny his very self, take up his cross, and begin to follow in my footsteps" (Mt. 16: 24).

Hurling challenges at everyone indiscriminately, Jesus summed up all human relations by making the Golden Rule an absolute must for any person who would fulfill the law and the prophets: "Treat others the way you would have them treat you" (Mt. 7: 12).

He even tied being Christian in with goodwill toward one's enemies: "You have heard the commandment, 'You shall love your countryman, but hate your enemy.' My command to you is: love your enemies, pray for your persecutors. This will prove that you are children of your heavenly Father" (Mt. 5: 43-44). It would be tough enough if this were merely advice.

Wrapping up all his commandments and directives into one neat package, Jesus told us: "This is my commandment: love one another as I have loved you" (Jn. 15: 12).

The Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a special public hearing Wednesday, January 2, 1991, 7:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers of City Hall following an order of the City Council to make recommendation on the following proposed changes to the Bay St. Louis Zoning Ordinance, being Ordinance No. 220:

(1) Article V shall be amended to add the following Section: Section 507. Water and Bottomlands. All waters and bottomlands within the territorial boundary lines of the City and located in either the Bay of St. Louis and its tributaries or the Mississippi Sound shall carry the same zoning as the abutting uplands.

(2) Article VI shall be amended to add the following Section: Section 604.1.24. Piers, docks, marinas and all activities permitted and authorized by the Mississippi Gaming Control Act of 1990, together with all amendments and revisions thereof.

Do you want the entire community thrown open to the possibility of land based casino gambling in the future?

The property next to the bay bridge and the downtown area between State St. and the railroad tracks on the beach is zoned commercial.

Under present zoning dockside casino gambling is not allowed. These proposed changes would not only extend all present zoning past the waters edge, but they will also change the existing zoning to allow casino gambling in all of our commercially zoned districts (C-1, C-2 & C-3). It would allow gambling in some industrial zones as well.

Christmas—Southern style

Centuries-old European customs are the most commonly practiced during the Christmas season, but an encyclopedia co-edited by two University of Mississippi professors credits Southerners with having created a few holiday traditions of their own.

For example, according to the "Encyclopedia of Southern Culture," the widespread acceptance of poinsettias as the Christmas flower dates from 1825, when a Charleston, S.C., man with that name brought the red-leaved plant from Mexico as a gift.

Southerners also replaced the European firs and cedars with pines as the Christmas tree in the South. Other regional touches include the substitution of turkey and seafood for the traditional European beef and goose at holiday feasts.

Parties and the exchanging of gifts at Christmas were toned down by the Puritans, who regarded excessive holiday festivities as almost sacrilegious. That all changed once Christmas made its way south of the Mason-Dixon Line.

The encyclopedia states that in back-country rural areas, plantation houses became the scene of sometimes extravagant Christmas partying, eating and drinking.

Bourbon-soaked fruitcakes baked from family recipes and eggnog with rum quickly became southern favorites at Christmas.

Games—including an early-morning hunt for deer, rabbit, duck or quail—became a standard activity by men and boys on Christmas Day.

The French in Louisiana originated the use of fireworks at Christmas and burning of bonfires along the Mississippi River on Christmas Eve. To this day, in the South fireworks can be seen and heard on Christmas Day as much, or even more so, than on the fourth of July.

"Perhaps the reason Southerners seem to go all out for Christmas is that they have always enjoyed having a good time," said Dr. Bill Ferris, director of the Center for Southern Studies at Ole Miss and co-editor with Dr. Charles Wilson of the "Encyclopedia of Southern Culture." "It dates back to antebellum days when living was much more simple and people got together for relaxation and recreation."

"Though Southerners are not exempt from the stress and pressures life can bring, they find celebrations and festivities as ways to ease the tension," Ferris added.

As an example, Ferris related the story circulated in Cajun country of how Santa Claus used alligators to pull his sleigh through the Louisiana Bayou on one occasion when his reindeer were ill.

"This kind of folklore is exemplary of Southerners' innate ability to adapt. Even with difficult situations and limited resources, Southerners always somehow manage to enjoy Christmas," he said.

"Perhaps this explains why, no matter how far people may move away from the South, if they have family in the South, they always come home for Christmas," he added.

"Hanukkah," the Mississippi Educational Television Network's half-hour documentary hosted by Edward Asner, can be seen again this holiday season at 1:30 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 23. "Hanukkah" recounts the events more than 2,000 years ago that led to the celebration every year of the eight-day mid-winter festival by Jews the world over.

PAVAROTTI

"A Christmas Special with Luciano Pavarotti," a holiday favorite for several years, returns to help celebrate Christmas Eve beginning at 10 p.m., on the Mississippi Educational Television Network and Public Radio in Mississippi (PRM).

The illustrious Italian tenor's hour of sacred music from the dramatic Notre Dame Cathedral in Montreal includes such favorites as "O, Holy Night," "Silent Night," "Ave Maria," "Adeste Fidelis" and the traditional "Hallelujah Chorus."

Pavarotti sings solo and is featured with Les Petits Chanteurs du Mont-Royal Canadian boys' choir and Les Disciples de Massenet adult chorus.

TCHAIKOVSKY

Every four years, hundreds of classically trained musicians—pianists, violinists, cellists and singers—journey to Moscow to compete in the prestigious month-long International Tchaikovsky Competition.

This year, more than 40 contestants from the United States participated, as well as performers from 35 other countries, in what has been described as "the Olympic Games of music."

"The IX International Tchaikovsky Competition," airing at 9 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 25, on Mississippi ETV, captures some of the most dramatic moments of the competition, including performances by Soviet pianist Boris Berezovsky and Japanese violinist Akaki Suwanai, who both took top honors at the competition.

Today

Good Health & Long Life are Invisible Christmas Gifts

When the Three Wise Men, led by the star, came from the Orient to worship at the Crib in Bethlehem, they brought with them gifts meant for a King. Along with gold and precious stones, they brought medicinal and aromatic herbs and spices (such as frankincense and myrrh) then numbered among the world's most treasured possessions.

It is clear from Biblical writings that the early Hebrews prized the "vegetable drugs" very highly and they had great respect for the physician and the physician's assistant, the apothecary (pharmacist).

Beginning with the Book of Exodus, the Bible makes mention of these two "health team" members and of the methods they used to heal the sick. Bandages, applications of oil and of oil mixed with wine, salves, poultices, roots and leaves were the tools the Biblical physician used in order to practice his profession.

Fortunately, times have changed since then. Today's physician can count on hundreds of useful drugs to help him in his fight against disease. And, thanks to modern research, under your Christmas Star there's an invisible gift . . . health and long life.

Keep holiday greenery fresh

Those who prefer the look and scent of a real Christmas tree to that of an artificial one are probably once again wondering what to do to keep this year's tree from drying out, shedding its needles and becoming a potential fire hazard.

Two University of Mississippi professors have some suggestions that might help you deal with this perennial holiday dilemma.

To prevent the tree from drying out and subsequently losing its needles, water it every day.

Dr. Evamaria Neumaier—a botanist who helps curate Ole Miss' herbarium, a collection of dried and preserved plants—recommends watering with a solution of equal amounts of water and glycerin. Glycerin may be purchased from most florists or drugstores.

Dr. Jack Davis Brown, an Ole Miss modern languages professor who also owns a garden center in Oxford, recommends standing the tree in lukewarm water (or water that has reached room temperature) to which 7-UP or Sprite has been added.

"The effervescence seems to help the tree absorb moisture, and the sugar may help prevent the needles from dropping off," he said.

If you also like to use fresh pine and cedar greenery during the holidays, brown said you should condition it to keep it from drying out. To do so, simply soak the greenery in water for several hours, then shake it out and arrange it as desired. Mist the greenery periodically to help prevent it from drying out, too.

Hazards of the holidays for the family pet told

By Dr. Andrea S. Mullen
"Tis the season to eat." Christmas cakes and candies are everywhere, and many of us will be celebrating by eating, and eating and eating. It's only natural that you want your dog and cat family member to enjoy in the celebrations, too.

Many well-meaning pet owners feel the best way to make a dog happy is to feed it table scraps and maybe some cookies and candies—and feed it and feed it and feed it.

I recently went on a house call to see a dog that had diarrhea and had been vomiting for 24 hours. It turned out that "Fluffy" had been given a large portion of leftover ham, gravy and lots of vanilla pudding.

A young family member also gave Fluffy some chocolate milk and licorice jelly beans because Fluffy looked hungry. The patient had an acute case of gastroenteritis (belly-ache), and with treatment, Fluffy recovered.

This type of feeding not only causes diarrhea and vomiting but can lead to obesity. Fat dogs are predisposed to arthritis, back problems such as a "slipped disk" and possibly paralysis of the lower legs, heart problems, breathing problems and pancreatitis, which can be fatal.

If a dog is being fed a good-quality prepared pet food, no supplementation is needed. This does not mean that you should avoid all pet treats. However, these "treats" should be especially formulated for dogs or cats.

Many people believe that pets like a variety of the same flavors as humans do, but in reality, dogs and cats prefer eating the same thing day after day after day.

The following are items prevalent this time of year that could be harmful to your pet:

Eggnog: is a rich source of butterfat, milk, egg yolks, and tons of sugar. Milk is a common cause of diarrhea in dogs and cats, because they have very little of the enzyme necessary to digest the lactose in the milk. Do not feed your pet eggnog, instead, mix in something special and consume it yourself.

Chocolate and candy: are very well liked by many dogs and some cats. (My one and only weakness is chocolate). The problem with feeding these high caloric treats to your pet is that he may not eat enough of his normal diet.

Besides becoming overweight, your pet may develop dental cavities. More importantly, chocolate contains theobromine which is toxic to dogs and cats. Unsweetened chocolate has much more theobromine than milk chocolate.

For example, to receive a potentially lethal dose of chocolate, a dog weighing 20 pounds would have to eat 2 oz. or about 2 candy bars of unsweetened chocolate and 23 oz. or 15 candy bars of milk chocolate. Signs of chocolate poisoning are vomiting, depression, frequent urination, muscular tremors and diarrhea.

Bones: Unlike most humans, dogs love chewing on bones, and chewing helps prevent build-up of tartar on their teeth. However, small bones, and those that splinter (chicken bones) may get caught in their mouth or intestinal tract causing the dog to become very sick. Giving large "nuckle bones" that don't splinter is better, but chewing them may break a few teeth!

Table scraps: should not be fed as the only diet of dog or cat. In some households, such as mine, there are never leftovers!

Letters to Santa

PJ

Dear Santa,
I have been good but not in school. My name is Stanley Mons. I am 3rd grade. I am 9 years old. In July the 11, 1991 I will be 10 years old. Merry Christmas Santa?

By Stanley

Dear Santa,
My name is Jamie. I am a student at Charles B. Murphy. I am 10.

Your friend Jamie

Dear Santa,
My name is Herbert Spencer, Pearlinton, Mississippi. I am eight year old. I have a big sister and she go to school in Hancock this is my list for what I want for Christmas.

- 1 Nintendo tapes
- 2 skateing board
- 3 and a bike
- 4 and little nintendo games from Herbert to Santa

Fat trimmings from meat may be added to dry food but should be less than 10 percent of your pet's diet. Feeding large amounts of fat trimmings at one time may cause diarrhea and pancreatitis.

Mistletoe: There is no documented cases of mistletoe poisoning in small animals, but there are cases in humans, especially children who have died from eating mistletoe. In dog and cats, ingestion of large amounts of mistletoe can cause a severe case of "belly-ache."

Poinsettia: Each year at Christmas thousands of poinsettias are sold. The poinsettia contains a milky sap that is irritating to the skin, eyes mouth and stomach. Signs of poinsettia sap irritation are a red and swollen mouth, red and watery eyes, vomiting and diarrhea.

Antifreeze: Unfortunately, each year many dogs and cats die from drinking antifreeze. Antifreeze (ethylene glycol) has a sweet taste that dogs and cats like. Only one teaspoon of antifreeze can kill an average size cat.

Signs of poisoning are vomiting and the animal appears drunk. Death occurs within 12 to 36 hours after ingestion of antifreeze.

If you suspect your dog or cat has consumed antifreeze, take it to your veterinarian immediately. Early treatment could save your pet's life.

Christmas ornaments: The one that comes to mind are the long, stringy, silver "icicles" that you very carefully throw all over your Christmas tree.

Cats and dogs are fascinated by these long shining things that seem to have life. If swallowed, these icicles can easily cause an obstruction in the intestines and without surgery your pet could die. Never leave your pet alone with the Christmas tree!

Have a wonderful time this holiday season, and please don't leave Fido out in the cold!

Have a Sparkling
White Christmas

We wish you all the very best!

New release from Class Distinction

A new collection of Christmas music with the "distinctive" sound of Bay St. Louis trio "Class Distinction" is available locally in several stores. The three Bay Catholic Elementary school teachers even involved principal Ann Allen in the project, who is credited with the cover art featuring the title "Christmas Doo-Bee Swing" beneath a tree laden with gifts and singer Connie Heitzmann's dog, "Mitzie", who is heard on one of the new songs. From left are Mary Howard, Pam Wallace and Heitzmann. Guitarist Tommy Moran is also featured on the cassette, which was recorded in Bogalusa at "Studio in the Country." Class Distinction will perform on the Riverboat Natchez this weekend. For additional information, call 467-1892 or 467-9646.

NOMA Exhibition presents holiday magic in miniature

The New Orleans Museum of Art invites adults and children of all ages to escape into the fantasy of 'Miniature Dollhouses and Toy Soldiers: A Holiday Celebration,' at NOMA through Dec. 30.

This enchanting Yuletide exhibition culled from among the finest of New Orleans area collections, features a variety of dollhouses, miniature dioramas, and a selection from one of the region's most comprehensive collections of toy soldiers.

Dominating the skyline of the exhibition is a 4- by 5-foot Victorian dollhouse belonging to Elise King of New Orleans. Originally purchased eight years ago as a plywood shell, this now-incredible structure includes 11 rooms, a bay turret, electricity, and interior miniature furnishings from England, Spain and Holland.

Also on view are two plantation-style dollhouses, the project of Mrs. C. Paul Schulte. One has a separate kitchen and the other features contemporary furnishings. Both structures also have electricity.

Among the miniatures in the exhibition is a turn-of-the-century one-room schoolhouse, courtesy of Mrs. J. L. Fischman.

Modeled after a structure near the Servitude Plantation, the schoolhouse is complete with a miniature American flag, circa 1900.

Some of the other miniature structures on view include: a small Cajun fishing camp and a Christmas wreath with a miniature scene, courtesy of Mrs. Robert Pflueger; a miniature bridal suite, courtesy of Ms. Betty Wisdom; and an armour shop and Japanese home with an authentic garden, courtesy of Jane Gage.

Finally, the collection of toy lead soldiers belonging to Don and Betty Weil of New Orleans is sure to be a hit with boys both big and small. Mr. Weil, who cast all of the soldiers, was recently asked by President Bush, a collector of toy lead soldiers himself, to make a set for the Presidential Collection.

On display in the exhibition will be soldiers of the Napoleonic Wars, the Civil War, mechanized military vehicles from throughout history, as well as troops from nations the world over. All soldiers are adorned with the uniforms and equipment authentic to their periods.

'Miniature Dollhouses and Toy Soldiers: A Holiday Celebration' will be on view in NOMA's Wisner Gallery. For more information, call the museum at (504) 488-2631.

A Soldier's Christmas

by SPC Tommy Bergeron 1355 S & S Co.

'Twas the night before Christmas and all through the night,
There was no one around, no soldier in sight.
All was well and every soldier was in his bed
With lovely Christmas dreams roaming through his head.
Everyone was sleeping, well, all except for me;
As I looked at my watch and it read half past three.
As I took a peek out my window and saw this small Alabama town,

My reflection in the window showed my long-faced frown.
I slipped on my boots and put on my jacket.
I hustled downstairs trying not to make any racket.
There was a chill in the air and frost on the ground;
As I wandered down the sidewalk, I found a cord on the ground.
I traced the cord for a mile or two,
I ran into something that put a hole in my shoe.
I looked at the ground and an outlet was there.
Not too far ahead a triangular figure is where my eyes would stare.

I plugged in the cord and the sight said it all,
As it started to rain and snow flakes began to fall.
As I looked up, I saw a lit Christmas tree.
It was so bright, so everyone could see.
As I made my way back to my room
The air was deafened by a big boom.
Reville played the start of a new day,
As I looked on my bunk I said to myself, "There's no way."
A stocking was left on my bunk with a card inside.
It said no matter how bad it is, don't go and hide.
Be strong and keep your head up high,
With good luck and best wishes... bood-bye.
As I took the card and ran to the window,
Next to the tree was a round, stubby shadow.
The shadow waved, and I waved back,
As it was time for me to hit the sack.
Then the shadow disappeared in the thin mid-air.
There was nothing around, nothing there,
Except the Christmas tree,
Which was a symbol for me
To let me know Christ will be with me no matter where I'll be.

The moral of the story is very plain, you see.
Christ was born for you and me.
Though we're not home this year,
We're still full of motivation and cheer.
The true meaning of Christmas is not the gifts,
But to spending with the ones you love
And don't forget the Lord above.
As I venture on and I'm outta sight,
To all a Merry Christmas, and to all good night.

May peace be with you and those you love.

Christmas - Jesus' Birthday

Christmas is upon us once again,
The day of Jesus' lowly birth;
Angels sang about Him in sweet refrain,
The day Our Savior came to earth.
His tender, sweet Mother was standing there,
She adored her tiny Baby Boy;
She knew He was "Special" and so fair,
He brought to the world Heaven's Joy.
He grew and He taught as he walked among men,
Was crucified, died, and then put away;
He arose from the grave and was seen again,
Ascended to Heaven - Will come back some day.
A Babe no longer - this Savior of us all,
God's gift of His Son on that long ago day;
His birthday at Christmas we like to recall,
Yes 'tis Christmas - 'tis Christmas
It's Jesus' Birthday!

DOWN HOME

Too little time, too much to do...

It's a common condition for many of us. Everyday demands and chores seem to engulf the day, leaving little time to pursue those things that are important.

But you do have choices in how you spend your time. Balancing what you need to do with what you want to do can lead to happiness and success.

Time is the most valuable, and critical of all resources available to us. It is limited to 24 hours every day, and no matter who you are or what you own, it's equally available to be used by everyone.

Time is an asset which can be budgeted and controlled like any other resource. If someone said to you, "I just don't know where my house went," you would think he was some kind of nut.

But when someone says, "I just don't know where the time went today," you'd say, "Welcome to the club, sister!"

Parkinson's Law states that, "Work expands to fill the time available for its completion." A good example of this is the little old lady who has only one job to do all day—write a letter.

She spends an hour finding the right stationery, another hour finding her spectacles, half an hour searching for the address, an hour and a quarter composing the letter, and 20 minutes deciding whether or not to take an umbrella when going to the mailbox down the block.

"Time Management" is actually a misnomer. One does not manage time, for the minute hand is out of one's control. Therefore, it is a matter of managing yourself with respect to the clock.

Once this concept is understood, you can readily understand why the management of yourself brings you face-to-face with what seems to be a staggering array of problems.

Most of the problems encountered are a result of time robbers. Everyone tends to feel that his problems are unique. But time management studies of hundreds of persons from different occupations show that they all listed similar time robbers.

It's important to realize that many time robbers are internally generated. When people are asked to identify their major time wasters, they invariably list external causes first, such as telephones, meeting, visitors, paperwork, children, people interrupting and other delays.

Yet, when the real sources of time robbers are identified, it is usually the individual himself.

These internal robbers come from things such as:

- * failing to delegate
- * taking care of others' concerns first
- * letting minor jobs interfere with the big job
- * allowing anyone to talk

- with you at any time.
- * failing to make a clear plan and set priorities and
- * procrastinating

Do any of those describe you? To be in control of your life and your time takes planning. Planning brings the future into the present so that you can do something about it now.

The first rule in making a realistic plan to use your time is to establish your lifetime goals.

Deciding what is important enough to you to spend your time and your life accomplishing. Only you can decide what are the most important things for you.

For example, you may have several short-term goals (to be completed in six months). If one of your goals would be to improve your appearance, then you have something to work toward.

But you can't do a goal. So now you need to list activities to help you accomplish this goal.

(Example: visit a doctor to get a diet plan, establish an exercise routine, join a weight reduction club, visit a spa, etc.)

But, it's not enough to list the activities; they need to be prioritized too. Use the technique of assigning an A, B, C, A1, A2, etc. to establish your priorities.

Also, ask yourself if you are willing to use the time or spend the money necessary to complete the activity.

If the answer is no, draw a line through the activity.

Once you have done this, you are ready to make a daily "to do" list. This list can be any style, color, or shape. But it must be workable for you.

If you are employed, you may choose to have two different "to do" lists. One for work and work goals and another for non-working hours.

The items that are not completed that day may appear on tomorrow's "to do" list. The main idea is to get those activities which move toward your goals done first and then move on to the other activities.

Most people find the activities which help them to reach their goals the hardest ones to do. The other activities in life are the ones that are usually easiest—sometimes most demanding, so we usually rationalize that it is best to do those first to get them out of the way. But then there is not time available to do the things in life that we really want to do.

One time management expert says that people have a tendency to do the easy jobs or "C" jobs first. People who claim to be overwhelmed are people who are comfortable doing "C" jobs. These people should follow the 80/20 rule.

The 80/20 rule says, "If all items are arranged in order of value, 80 percent of the value would come from only 20 percent of the items, while the remaining 20 percent of the value would come from 80 percent of the items."

Out of a list of ten items, two items will yield 80 percent of the value, while the other eight will yield only 20 percent. These eight items are the things that can usually be left undone.

Your life also follows the 80/20 rule. So find the 20 that yields 80 percent of the value for you, and concentrate on that 20 percent. Try letting all of the other activities that are of low value go.

See what happens when you eliminate these activities. If nothing happens say good-bye forever to these time-consuming activities or habits.

WEDDINGS, ENGAGEMENTS

MR. AND MRS.
DELROY JOHNSON

Lambright-Bonura

The See Bee Chapel in Gulfport was the setting the evening of November 8 for the candlelight ceremony uniting in marriage Ja-Net Louise Bonura and Commander Harold R. Lambright, United States Navy, Retired.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Fryer of New Orleans and Diamondhead, and the bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harold R. Lambright of Connecticut.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of candlelight silk and Alencon lace enhanced with pearls and beading on the bodice. She carried a bouquet of white sweetheart roses.

Marilyn Young was matron of honor. Best man was Lt. Cmdr. William North. The bride's son, J. Ross Bonura, was usher.

Following a wedding trip to Cancun, Mexico, the couple will reside in Diamondhead.

CMDR. AND MRS.
HAROLD LAMBRIGHT

Johnson-Hawkins

Terri Denise Hawkins of Waveland became the bride of Delroy Johnson of Pasadena, Maryland in a recent ceremony at the home of Norita Henry.

The Reverend Charles Hawkins officiated at the late afternoon exchange of vows.

The bride is the daughter of Rachel B. Hawkins of Waveland and the late James Hawkins Jr. The groom's parents are Myrtle Henson and Roland Curry, both of Pasadena, Maryland.

Given in marriage by Gary Hawkins, the bride wore a tea length gown of peach taffeta, overlaid with peach chantilly lace. She carried a nosegay of peach silk blossoms.

Yolanda Hunt of Waveland was maid of honor. Leo Hawkins of Waveland served as best man. The couple will reside in Georgia.

Free tree planting brochure offered

Now is the time to plan ahead for your spring tree-planting project, and a free brochure is available from The National Arbor Day Foundation to assist.

The free brochure, called Conservation Trees, uses colorful photos and illustrations and easy-to-understand descriptions to guide tree planting and care.

The Conservation Trees brochure includes these sections:

* How to use windbreaks and shade trees to save energy in your home

* How to attract songbirds to your yard

* How to save trees during construction

* How to save topsoil and help farm profits with shelterbelts

* The right way to plant trees

* The right way to prune trees.

* The National Arbor Day

Foundation's Conservation Trees program encourages Americans to plant and manage trees to conserve soil, energy, water, wildlife, and the atmosphere," John Rosenow, the Foundation's executive director said.

For your free brochure, send your name and address to: Conservation Trees, The National Arbor Day Foundation, Nebraska City, NE 68410.

Exchange Club of Hancock County

The Exchange Club of Hancock County joined hundreds of Exchange Clubs across the nation in observing "One Nation Under God" Month during November.

Gwen Meyers, president of the local Exchange Club, said the club-sponsored activities increased community awareness of America's rich religious heritage as well as heightened appreciation of the many freedoms we enjoy as a nation.

"During this holiday season, all Americans should be aware of the importance of religious faith in our nation's history, and just as importantly, they should appreciate the freedom which allows us to express that faith," said club president Gwen Meyers.

"One Nation Under God" Month is a national program of the Exchange Clubs of America. The main objective of the program is to help make America's citizens more aware and appreciative of the importance of religious faith and freedom in our nation's past, present, and future.

The program is one of many sponsored nationally by Exchange, America's oldest and largest exclusively American service club organization. In addition to "One Nation Under God" Month, The National Exchange Club sponsors National Crime Prevention Week, the Youth of the Year program, Freedom Shrine displays of historic American documents and a nationwide child abuse prevention project.

Abundant mirlitons

Edith Costella harvests a few mirlitons from the garden she cultivates with her husband, Charles Costella. The healthy vine yielded some 500 mirlitons during the season. The couple offers the following recipes for the delicious vegetables.

STUFFED MIRLITONS (with Ham)

12 mirlitons
5 small onions
1 lb. ham, ground, or seasoning ham
3 toes garlic
parsley
1/2 loaf French bread
1 egg
Salt and pepper
Fry onions, add seasoning to soaked bread. Scoop out mirlitons.

Fry ham seasoning, add to soaked bread along with mirlitons. Cook approximately 20 min. Put in shells. Bake 20 minutes at 300 degrees until heated.

MIRLITON CAKE

3 or 4 cups mashed mirlitons
1/2 cup sugar
1 yellow cake mix
4 egg yolks
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup pecans
1 cup coconut
1 tsp. cinnamon, 1 tsp. nutmeg (optional)

Mix all ingredients at once. Bake in oblong pan 50 or 60 minutes. Spread with butter cream icing.

Pass Christian Art Association

The Pass Christian Art Association features its semi-annual showing during the month of December at the Pass Christian Library on Hiern Avenue.

Included are 19 paintings of multi-media. The works were judged and awards given by Ann Kroll of the Mississippi Museum of Art.

First and second place went to Georgia Kuhner. Third place was a tie between Maryellen Backus Turcotte and Mary Margaret McQueen.

Other artists showing are Jean Hammett, Sy Crochet, Bessie M. Petronati, Anne Meyer, Bill Hart, Ouida Tanner, Bertha Giani, Jeanne Warner, Bob Florie, Evelyn Hull and Phyllis Levy.

Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce

December was a festive month in Pass Christian. The city was beautifully decorated for "Christmas in the Pass." The annual dinner with the Pass Christian Rotary Club was sponsored, with Adele Bielenburg named "Citizen of the Year."

The new board members of the Pass Christian Area Chamber of Commerce were welcomed by the 1991 Chairman Dayton Robinson as follows: vice chairman Holt Montgomery, Mary Case, Dr. Ronald Hunt, G. Baxter Jones and Jon Roth. Other members are Louis Hall, Diane Havard, Clinton Necaise, Paige Read, Dr. James Winchester and Frank Wittmann.

Guest speaker was Dr. David Veal, program leader of the Sea Grant Advisory Service from Mississippi State University.

The next board meeting will be Jan. 10 at 5:30 p.m. at the Pass Christian Chamber building. The Main Street Committee will meet at the Chamber Building on Wednesday, Jan. 16 at 5:30 p.m.

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139

The monthly sing-a-long, sponsored by the Clement R. Bon Temps American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139 for the residents of Hotel Reed Nursing Center was Thursday, Dec. 6, co-hosted by Roslyn Weathers and Oris Planchard.

Lena Mae Oustalet played the piano as Roslyn Weathers led the singing. Oris Planchard and Pat Turnipseed went among the residents to visit and encourage them to participate in the activity.

The residents enjoy the gospel, 'oldies but goodies,' and also the refreshments served by these ladies.

The regular monthly meeting of the auxiliary was Monday, Dec. 10 at the Legion home.

Janet Aime, president, opened the meeting, and one of the members moved to dispense with the regular order of business and 'get on with the Christmas festivities.' Chaplain Ursula Favre read a prayer of grace, and the fun began.

Each member brought a covered dish and a gift to exchange; and for the husbands who came, they also had gifts to exchange.

While everyone was busy with their plates, Christmas songs were played and sung by the members.

After the table was cleared, the gifts were handed out. The members added their best wishes for their absent members for a speedy recovery from their illnesses and a prayer for "our boys" away from home.

Library announces holiday schedule

All three branches of the Hancock County Library System—City-County Public Library, Kiln Library and Waveland Library—will close Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 24, 25 and 26 for Christmas and Tuesday, Jan. 1 for New Year's.

Library users wishing to return books during these times are asked to use the book drop in the rear of the City-County Public Library on Uman Avenue, the book drop at the Waveland Library, or return their books during normal business hours.

Children's story hours will not be held during the Christmas week. Story hours will resume at the City-County Public Library on Wednesday, Jan. 2 and at the Waveland Library on Friday, Jan. 4.

Wusnack, Kanady attend conference

Prima Wusnack, director of the Hancock County Public Library System, and Cathy Kanady, assistant director, recently attended the Mississippi Library Association's 1990 annual conference in Jackson.

Attended by members from all types of libraries across the state, the convention's theme, "Mississippi Libraries Making a Lifetime Difference" illustrated the library as an essential instrument for individual and societal advancement.

Gloria Norris, the first woman editor-in-chief of the Book of the Month Club, was the keynote speaker at the convention.

A native of Holcomb, Miss., she was graduated from the University of Southern Mississippi with highest honors, and now has her own publishing company. Several of her short stories set in Mississippi have been selected for the O'Henry Prize Stories and Stories from the South: The Year's Best.

Wusnack and Kanady participated in several workshops offered at the convention, featuring such topics as trustee manuals and interlibrary loan networking.

The first general session of the convention included the third annual presentation of the MLA Authors Awards, with this year's recipients Larry Brown, Willie Morris and Johanna Hurwitz.

Exhibits were also displayed featuring new technology, books, services and new library products.

A PROVEN SOLUTION TO KIDNEY STONE PROBLEMS!

More than two million people have had kidney stones removed without a scratch.

Lithotripsy is a proven, cost-effective and much less painful alternative to surgical removal of kidney stones, utilizing a special technique to disintegrate the stones.

Slidell Memorial Hospital is proud to announce the availability of a state-of-the-art "bath-less" Lithotripter for management of kidney stones. A series of quick, short waves reduce the stones to sand-sized particles that easily pass through the patient's urine.

The advantages include lower cost, shorter recovery time and better patient tolerance. The "bath-less" technique has the added advantage of an environment that maintains your privacy, as you are not required to be completely unclothed at the time of the procedure. Because it is so efficient, treatment usually requires less than one hour and can be performed on an outpatient basis, allowing you to resume everyday activities shortly after discharge.

If you're already suffering from kidney stones, why suffer a painful recovery from surgery when there is a fast, effective non-surgical alternative. For more information about this exciting procedure, please call 646-0044.

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

Diamondhead Garden Club

The Dec. 19 meeting and luncheon of the Diamondhead Garden Club was called to order by President Gerri Garberg.

Betty Cutler introduced guests Carrie Normand, Pat King, Gayle Kny-Bechtel, Irma Chesterfield, Nancy Yarbrough, Delora Diekeman, Suzanne Stewart, Ethel LeBreton, Peggy Harien, Brenda Becker, Sandy Arrington, Christine Sauter and Katie Knodle.

Nancy Shuback announced the winners of the Christmas Lighting Contest: first place, Fred and Dottie Corales of Anlii Street; second place, Gert Wadington on Airport Drive; third place, Alvin and Ethel LeBreton, whose home is located on Golf Club Drive. Winners were very pleased to receive bluebird houses made for the garden club by Bob Valigosky.

Garberg announced the club decorated a boat for the recent boat parade. Theme was "Star in the East." Garberg thanked the members who had participated.

Entertainment for the luncheon meeting was provided by the children from Diamondhead Academy, under the leadership of Jim Ballard, music teacher.

The children sang several selections of Christmas Carols. Their rendition of "The Little Drummer Boy" was sung by third and fourth graders, with background percussion by the fifth and sixth graders.

The last number presented by the children included a group who "signed" to the song "We Wish You A Merry Christmas."

Brierly Acker also introduced member Katie Knodle, who sang "Jesus, Jesus, Rest Your Head" and "Gesu Bambino," with Jean Keen accompanying her on the piano.

Garden club members thoroughly enjoyed the music and the delicious luncheon, which had been provided by all attending.

President Garberg thanked hostesses for the day, Kathy Fernandez, Lenore Smith, Janet Snymer, Linda Wallace, Betty Cutler, Lee Fredian, Jean Keen and Ann Neff.

The next meeting will be Jan. 17 at 10 a.m. in the Diamondhead Community Center. In addition, the Garden Club board will meet Jan. 9 at 2 p.m.

Twentieth Star Mississippi DAR

Mrs. Martha Hamilton of Petal was hostess recently at a Twentieth Star Chapter meeting of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Paul R. Crowson, regent of the chapter, welcomed four new members, including Ms. Mary Frances Waters of Sumrall and Joe Williams Pilet, Betty Graham and Shirley Davenport, all of Bay St. Louis and transfers from the Friendship Oak Chapter.

Good Citizen chairman announced Robin Sumrall, a senior at the Sumrall High School, has earned the Good Citizen Award. Robin qualified as an outstanding student and editor of the year book.

Mrs. Rowena McCarty, literacy chairman, reported her visit to the John Rolfe Chapter in Hattiesburg where Mrs. Mabus, wife of our governor, spoke on her pet project of literacy.

The Hamilton home was lavishly decorated in Christmas motif where two trees were focal points—one, a tree of "Christmas Past" and the other an all white tree decorated with hand-crocheted ornaments. Members furnished "pot luck" from their favorite recipes, and there were songs and piano music. Following the luncheon, a tour was given of Mrs. Hamilton's 1843 cabin, now growing into a museum. Each year at the Christmas season Mrs. Hamilton invites the group to visit the cabin and enjoy the memories of that era in our history.

Medical Assistants

Coast Counties Medical Assistants held their installation of officers at the Dec. 11 meeting which was at the Biloxi Hilton.

State and chapter advisor Dr. Joseph R. Mitchell of Gulfport, using the magnolia and candlelight installation ceremony, installed the newly elected officers:

President, Carolyn Harden; president-elect, Ann Larkin, CMA-A, RMA; vice-president, Gayle Grantham; secretary, Sandra Sison; treasurer, Marie Reuscher, and board members Sherry Goulette and Peggy Layman, CMA.

Outgoing president Lynn Gutterman, CMA presented her outgoing executive board with token gifts of her appreciation and passed the gavel on to incoming president Carolyn Harden.

Gutterman presented perfect attendance gifts to Linda Watkins, Sandy Sison, Judy Lewis, CMA, Peggy Layman, CMA, Ann Larkin, CMA-A, RMA and Carolyn Harden.

Harden presented the president's plaque to Gutterman and a gift to Dr. Mitchell for serving as advisor and installing officer.

The next meeting of Coast Counties Chapter will be Thursday, Jan. 17 at Belle River Recipes at 6:30 p.m. For reservations and information, members and/or guests are asked to call Gayle Grantham at 864-6244 no later than Jan. 15.
